

Steven Richardson - Biography

Steven Richardson is currently the lead investigator for the International Cricket Council's Anti-Corruption Unit. He is responsible for coordinating investigations into corruption and match fixing in international cricket and for coordinating investigations in domestic cricket where they cross jurisdictions. In his role he has dealt with players, coaches and other Participants for corrupting cricket while also interviewing and disrupting corruptors threatening the integrity of the game. As well as investigating media stings alleging corruption in cricket he recently completed a 5 month spell in Sri Lanka to combat corruption in Sri Lanka cricket and support the local cricket board.

Prior to working in cricket Steve was a senior detective in London's Metropolitan Police where he led a murder team investigating 40 murders. He also led teams that investigated serious and organized crime from drug trafficking to international firearms smuggling.